Hello Brother

These were the last words of the first victim of last weeks shooting in the Christchurch Mosque. These were addressed from the first victim to the shooter.

Out of the tragedy of last Friday,
the world has embraced New Zealand.
We are not alone.

Hope is what the Lord wants for us. For us to be Disciples of Hope.

Last Sunday we were reminded:

1. We are all the children of Abraham,
Jews, Christians and Muslims.
2. God sees us, all of us as his Sons and Daughters.
3. We have to open our eyes and see each other as Cousins, if not Brothers and Sisters. We are One.

Universal Support

There has been an outpouring of support across the globe for the people of New Zealand and for the Victims and their Families.

The NZ People have been so generous in crowd funding.

People are now standing up to the bullies and racists. It's time for us to be strong and to reclaim our voices.

What Would Jesus Do?

Always a great question when we are stuck. And the answer might be "Just what we are doing". Lets offer support to one another now, or we will be still asking the question: "Who is my neighbour?"

John Pearce CP.

WE STAND AS ONE

Thoughts and Aroha going out to all those affected by the tragic events in Christchurch.

This is NOT OK in New Zealand

Reflections After Christchurch

Joint Statement by New Zealand National Church Leaders 20 March 2019

The National Church Leaders gathered in Wellington today (Tuesday 19th March 2019) to express their profound horror at the terrible violence towards Muslim people in Christchurch mosques last Friday. We are deeply saddened by these tragic events and we strongly condemn these acts of racial hatred and murder. We feel very deeply for our fellow New Zealand faith community, which was so cruelly attacked as worshippers peacefully gathered for prayer.

We extend our prayerful and heartfelt sympathy to the Muslim community here in New Zealand, and around the world. The whole Christian church community in New Zealand is praying for the Muslim community: praying for the healing of the wounded, comfort for the bereaved, and for God's peace upon all who have been traumatised.

At this time of deep shock, grief, and anxiety, we ask and pray for all New Zealanders to stand united, to have great love and compassion, and to show unfailing respect and kindness for all people who live in this society of Aotearoa New Zealand, regardless of ethnicity or religious affiliation. We believe there is absolutely no room for racial hatred in our land, and we are determined that we must stand together as one people, united as human beings created by God, and as fellow New Zealanders. May goodness overcome evil, and peace and goodwill prevail.

The people of Marlborough have become "the light", or "Al Noor", for the Marlborough Muslim community since "the horror of last Friday".

Kiwis cannot deny "intolerance and racism" exist in New Zealand, says Marlborough Mayor John Leggett.

Leggett was speaking at a vigil in Blenheim on Wednesday night, where "half of Marlborough" turned out to pay their respects to the victims of the Christchurch mosque shootings and their families.

"How can such a cruel act of human violence be directed against a city which had already suffered so much?" Leggett said.

"We can only hope the overwhelming response, national and international, goes some way to ease the pain that's being felt there."

Leggett was, at times, overcome with emotion as he spoke to the crowd gathered at Blenheim's Seymour Square, where they held a moment's silence.

"As a community, we should not tolerate those who express intolerance and racism. We cannot deny it exists, but we can do more to step up and challenge such behaviour.

"Whether it's in casual conversation, people in online comments or in more aggressive acts."

Marlborough Muslim Association president Zayd Ian Blissett said the "horror of last Friday" did not represent the New Zealand that he knew and loved.

Supporting one another in Blenheim.

"The events of last Friday placed our community into the deepest pit of despair."

But the community had become "their light, their way out", he said.

As New Zealand mourned Friday's terror attacks in Christchurch, official and grassroots vigils were springing up across the country.

Thousands attend the vigil for Christchurch in Blenheim's Seymour Square.

A public vigil and 'march for love' was set for Christchurch this weekend. Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern said a national memorial would take place, and there would be a two-minute silence on Friday. A call to prayer would be broadcast nationally.

Tom Hatch spoke in Blenheim on behalf of Christian ministers of Marlborough and also represented the national church leaders of New Zealand.

"We are deeply saddened by the tragic events and we strongly condemn the acts of racial hatred and murder.

Marlburians show their support for the victims of Friday's Christchurch mosque shootings and their families.

"We feel deeply for our fellow New Zealand faith community which was so cruelly attacked as worshippers peacefully gathered for prayer."

Marlborough resident Josh Marshall, who made the Facebook event for the vigil, was amazed by the turnout.

"I just thought something needed doing," Marshall said. "Gave it a go ... three days later with half of Marlborough here."

Flowers and candles, a sign of sorrow and love.

People as Things: A New Story After Christchurch

Michael McVeigh. 19 March 2019.
Eureka Street.

'People as things, that's where it starts.'

'Oh, I'm sure there are worse crimes'.
'But they starts with thinking about people as things ...'

[From Carpe Jugulum, by Terry Pratchett]

No one can walk into a mosque and kill 50 human beings.

Think about what that would involve. It would mean walking into a place of peace and community, taking in all of the life and hope and possibility of the people in that place, and making a decision to bring all of those lives to a bloody and abrupt end.

There's no human idea, no line of human logic, that leads to a person walking into a mosque and killing 50 human beings. Who could think that there's any human idea that might be given life amid such devastation? That any human person might be convinced of your truth after it led to such horror?

But a person can be taught not to see human beings in that mosque. That's how human beings have been committing such atrocious acts since the beginning of human history.

It takes communities where poisonous worldviews can be shared and reinforced. It takes leaders who propose solutions that come out of those poisonous environments. It takes media organisations lining up for or against those solutions, offering both allies and enemies to rally around.

All this can help convince a person that their hateful truths are widely and deeply shared. That their hateful solutions are not only acceptable, but necessary. It won't matter to them that others will react with horror. Only those who understand, only those in the circle of hate, matter.

In the wake of the Christchurch attacks, I'm not interested in learning how the person who killed those people was radicalised.

It's the oldest story in the world. It's what happens when you decide the humanity of a group of people no longer matters. I'm tired of that story.

What I need right now is a new story, one that focuses on the life-givers not the death-dealers. I need to refocus on our shared humanity, because that's the one idea that will expose the lies at the heart of this hateful act.

What I need is to feel a connection to the human beings whose lives have been taken from them. To mourn the loss of their life, their hope, their possibility. To feel diminished by the space that they will leave behind.

I need to open my heart to the courageous and inspiring people in these besieged Muslim communities, who will continue to hold onto their faith and humanity in the face of this hatred. I need to join the thousands of people who are showing their love and support in various ways to Muslim communities — visiting mosques, attending prayer vigils, standing in solidarity.

I need to encourage those leaders who used this tragedy to emphasise our shared humanity, those like New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinta Ardern who called for 'sympathy and love for all Muslim communities'.

The story of renewal, of life sprouting out of the ashes of death, is another story that we've seen throughout history. In the wake of these Christchurch attacks, I dearly need that story to be told again.

I need that story to be told because I need to believe that someday we'll find an enduring place of peace and community, where we can live together as one human family, without having to worry about someone bringing it to a bloody and abrupt end.

Prayers from the Community Vigil on Wednesday Night at Seymour Square

Peace Prayer of Saint Francis

Lord, make me an instrument of your peace:
where there is hatred, let me sow love;
where there is injury, pardon;
where there is doubt, faith;
where there is despair, hope;
where there is darkness, light;
where there is sadness, joy.

O divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled as to console,
to be understood as to understand,
to be loved as to love.
For it is in giving that we receive,
it is in pardoning that we are pardoned,
and it is in dying that we are born to eternal life.
Amen.

Final Prayer

By John Pearce CP

God of All Creation, maker of the Universe,
You plant the seeds of Peace,
Joy and Love
in the Hearts of all people.

Draw near to your people
in New Zealand, that Sadness and Fear
might be lifted,
and that Hope and Joy
might be restored.

May the blood of the martyrs
draw us together
to support all people at this time,
and to make this a land where all people are welcome.

Manaakitia mai Aotearoa.
God defend New Zealand.

Good night. Thank you.
Go in Peace.
Now, say hello to your neighbours.
They're standing next to you.
